

Study on the Path of Enhancing the Ideological and Political Education Function of Volunteer Service Practice Activities of College Students in Local Universities

Jinzhang Leng, Wanying Zhang

School of art, Anhui University of Finance and Economics, Bengbu, Anhui, 233330, China.

Abstract

College students' voluntary service activities are an important way of ideological and political education in colleges and universities, an important embodiment of socialist core values, and an important impetus to promote Chinese-style modernization. In the new period, colleges and universities should strengthen the cultivation and guidance of college students' awareness of actively participating in volunteer service activities and carefully organize diverse and positive volunteer service activities to accelerate the organizational construction of college students' volunteer service.

Keywords

College students, volunteer practice activities; ideological and political education function.

1. The ideological and political education function of college students' volunteer service

1.1. Optimize the way of ideological and political education

In recent years, with the voluntary service activities into the campus, more and more into the public field of vision. Also for the major universities to carry out political education provides a new path, on the basis of which a new volunteer platform, in the vast number of students with a passion for serving the people for the dedication at the same time, but also in an invisible way to carry out their political education. In the past, the university education model, for students' political education remains in the excessive emphasis on theoretical teaching, oral education and written propaganda, but with the volunteer activities into the campus, students engaged in the process of volunteering, educators can be subtle in the activities into the ideological and political education of the knowledge and connotation of the teaching and learning so that students not only participate in the voluntary service to help the community and others, but also improve their own ideological and moral quality, can be said to be a "win-win" move.

1.2. Enhance the ideological and moral qualities of college students

In the process of volunteering, it can form the influence of ideological and political education on students and others. Specifically, for individual students: as an important position for teaching and educating people to provide talents for national development, colleges and universities are an important point in time for the formation and improvement of students' outlook on life, values and worldview, which shows the importance of the ideological education of colleges and universities for students. In the process of volunteering, students can realize their own role in the harmonious progress of society and the country, cultivate their feelings for the people, the Party and the country, and enhance their enthusiasm for serving the public. Students can not only satisfy their self-achievement, but also help others, fulfill the socialist core values, and when participating in the following countryside substitute classes, visit the elderly home for the elderly and other activities that need to communicate, but also exercise the students' language skills and social skills, some practical activities can also develop the students' hands-on ability and teamwork and improve their professional qualities, for the growth and development of the students have great significance. It is of great significance to the growth and development of students.

For the people being helped, while being helped, goodwill and enthusiasm are also passed on, and the correct ideological values are also conveyed to the hearts of other people by college students participating in volunteer activities, generating a positive impetus to make the excellent traditional virtues and socialist core values influence the people in a more flexible way. In addition, the political education impact of volunteering activities is an important measure to improve the quality and practice the socialist core values both for the college students participating in the activities and the people being served. College students use their high level of professional ability and vigorous energy to cultivate their sentiments in the process of service, complete the enhancement of self-personality, but also in an invisible way to influence others, and then on the social security and the practice of social and economic, cultural and political construction advocated by the state to help, but also the old, young, and weak groups of the community to get help, so that they feel the goodwill and help from the community and the state, in general, the combination of voluntary service activities and ideological and political education, is an important measure to enhance the quality and practice of the socialist core values. In general, the combination of volunteer activities and ideological and political education has extraordinary significance for both individuals and groups.

2. Problems in the ideological and political education function of college students' voluntary service

2.1. Universities pay little attention to the ideological and political education of voluntary activities

Colleges and universities in the organization of voluntary activities, often have neglected to add the content of ideological and political education in the activities, because the school's ideological education work is usually responsible for the education department, and voluntary activities are usually the school directly under the task or clubs randomly distributed activities, the two do not have a direct connection, so it is inevitable that the ideological and political education work stays in the written as well as didactic and other rigid way, lack of knowledge and practice to educate students in a combination of methods and ways. The combination of book knowledge and practice to educate students. And in the organization of work, the lack of special organization departments, publicity departments and logistics departments, is also the main reason for loose management, lack of institutional rules and guarantees, making students' participation enthusiasm is not high, the volunteers' own interests are not enough to protect, but also for the popularity of volunteerism has been greatly discounted.

2.2. Lack of Volunteerism in Student Engagement Activities

Students' motivation for participating in activities can be divided into voluntary and involuntary, because after participating in the activities can get the corresponding credits, and thus willing to participate in the activities, too many students and too much utilitarianism, few students can be completely is for wholehearted dedication to the community, but also because of this factor, resulting in a lack of dedication to volunteer service, many students often detached from the post or rambling, the thought of delaying the time to mix a credit, once encountered problems, thinking of avoiding difficulties or leaving the problem to the next person, which is one of the reasons for the lack of satisfaction with the completion of the task. Thinking of delaying time to mix a credit, once encountering problems, they think of escaping from difficulties or leave the problems to those who come after them, which is also one of the reasons leading to the lack of satisfaction with the completion of the task.

2.3. Lack of institutional safeguards for volunteer activities in schools

Volunteer activities are of great significance to the development of efficient education, but most schools lack an organized and regulated system to manage it as a special department, and also lack a special evaluation and reward mechanism and special fund assistance, resulting in a lack of system and fund security. Many activities have become difficult to carry out, and because of the lack of protection, many students are reluctant to participate in activities with a certain degree of difficulty, fearing that their own safety and interests are not guaranteed.

2.4. Lack of specialized recruitment requirements and training

In the recruitment of volunteers in the preliminary work, the lack of volunteers for their own ability and ideological content of the requirements, but also led to the participation of volunteers of uneven quality, low psychological quality and the lack of hard-working spirit of the students are often difficult to complete all the volunteer activities, halfway out of the students are not a few, where the selection of volunteers should be assessed to ensure that the task can be accomplished, and has been selected volunteers should also receive training, divided into groups according to the publicity, organization, external communication and other special training, which can also improve the overall quality of volunteer tasks. Selected volunteers should also be trained, divided into subgroups, in accordance with the publicity, organization, external communication and other special training, which can also improve the overall quality of volunteer tasks.

3. Analysis of the causes of the problems in the ideological and political education function of college students' voluntary service

Nowadays, the whole society is in full swing to carry out volunteer activities, the major universities in the students are also enthusiastic about it, but we have to admit that most of the activities lack of orderly discipline and regulations, there is no special fund and system to protect the personnel mixed management system is loose, and college students belong to the will of the group is relatively weak, it is very easy to be influenced by the loss of interests, and the society lacks the legal protection and regulations of this phenomenon. The causes of these problems are manifold, including the lack of legal safeguards and regulations against this phenomenon.

3.1. students lack awareness of volunteering. Some students think that participating in such activities will not bring them any benefits. For example, participation in volunteer service is only for the purpose of gaining personal honor, personal benefits, practice credits, etc., and thus the ideological and political education they can receive from volunteer service becomes shallow. Therefore, it is necessary for schools to pay attention to the cultivation of students' values, so that students understand that people live in the society, and the realization of self-worth and the search for the meaning of life cannot be separated from the society. Schools need to guide students to form the correct values, and only by contributing to society and helping others can they find the meaning of life.

3.2 Insufficient support provided by colleges and universities. Some colleges and universities do not provide enough resources for volunteer activities. It is not only the lack of venues, departments, funds and institutional security, but also the lack of cultivation and inculcation of the spirit of volunteerism, which can't make the perfect combination of volunteerism and ideological and political education. In addition, colleges and universities also lack the leading role for students, activities are mostly organized by students themselves or assigned by clubs, with few teachers and leaders taking the lead to participate as an example. This also leads to the limited publicity of voluntary activities and the narrow and single platform and way of participation, which hinders the development of voluntary activities and frustrates the enthusiasm and enthusiasm of organizers. Because the venues and projects to carry out activities also need a lot of money, it is difficult to grow by relying entirely on student organizations and clubs. Therefore, the school should also set up a special volunteer fund, for the sake of the volunteers themselves, should be by clear rules and regulations to protect the volunteers in the participation of the activities of the safety and interests of the volunteers, to prevent the occurrence of unexpected situations, to maximize the protection of the participants of the safety because of the lack of the above factors, but also to a certain extent impede the development of volunteer activities, students participate in the enthusiasm is not high, such as if the major colleges and universities can be If universities and colleges can pay attention to the improvement, I believe that the development of volunteer activities can also be a higher level.

3.3 Insufficient attention from society. Volunteer activities organized by schools do not only stay within the campus, but also outside the campus, such as community care activities, children's education support activities, social welfare activities, etc. If there is a lack of social support and attention, it will be an obstacle to their development, which is also one of the reasons for hindering the development of volunteerism.

4. The enhancement strategy of college students' volunteering to play the function of ideological and political education

4.1. Enhance the cultivation of service spirit and ideological and political education of university students

The cultivation of values of college students is one of the most important topics in the university, and helping others and contributing to the society is also an important spirit that we should actively practice. College students, as the new hope for the development of the country, are of great significance to the development of the society. Therefore, we have to actively cultivate the spirit of volunteerism among students. Only by forming a team of students with the spirit of serving the people can we give full play to the ideological and political education function of volunteerism and influence more students. Nowadays, in the era of rapid development of the network, we can also use the network technology, the network or self media and other ways to publicize the spirit of volunteerism and its educational significance more quickly and conveniently for college students to set up a role model to learn from, to enhance the enthusiasm of the students for volunteer activities, improve the incentive mechanism, and invisibly let the students feel the self-satisfaction of the sense of achievement and satisfaction that can be brought about by volunteering activities.

4.2. Optimizing the integration of volunteerism mechanisms and ideological and political education functions

When organizing activities, colleges and universities should improve the systematic mechanism of volunteering, set up a special organization responsible for it, and have strict standards for recruiting volunteers and training courses for volunteers, and cultivate volunteers who are good at different fields in different departments and levels. At the same time, it is also necessary to establish a comprehensive and fair evaluation mechanism, so that participating students can obtain the results through their own efforts, to stimulate the enthusiasm of college students to serve seriously, but also to establish a relevant feedback platform, so that students can have a platform to share their feelings and summarize their experiences after participating in the activities. It is not only to record their own experience, but also to make non-participating students interested in promoting volunteer activities in a way of communication.

4.3. Enriching the ways and forms of participation in university volunteer activities

Colleges and society should support the volunteer activities of college students, integrate excellent resources, and provide various ways and platforms for volunteer activities of colleges and universities, taking into account the situation of provinces, cities and towns. Colleges and universities are no longer limited to on-campus public welfare activities, such as the development of the "three to the countryside activities", the university will be the cultural knowledge of the university through the transportation of books and magazines, and college students go to the countryside to communicate with the villagers, making wall paintings and other ways to complete the dissemination of knowledge and cultural exchanges. Colleges and universities can also be combined with the local development situation, make full use of local culture, to create an exclusive volunteer service with cultural characteristics, for example, the hometown of Huangmei Opera, Anqing, can be used to carry out the activities of "going to the countryside to explore the Huangmei Opera" to not only help the rural areas to develop, but also to spread traditional culture. In the era of rapid development of the network, why don't we go to build college volunteering network platform, on the side of the distribution of volunteer activities, exchange of experience, publicize the activities, so that students can understand the activities of the campus trends at the touch of a finger.

4.4. Make volunteer activities closely linked to the spirit of the times

For several years, China's volunteer activities have also flourished, volunteerism is an important symbol of the development of social civilization, with the development of society, our volunteerism should also be injected into the spirit of the times, only to keep pace with the times in order not to be eliminated by the times, which coincides with the idea that we have to inculcate the ideological and political education for college students through volunteer activities, we have to incorporate into our volunteer activities, such as the persistence of the Daqing Spirit, the Lei Feng Spirit of service to the people, etc. We also have to learn to innovate, and only by constant reform and innovation can we keep progressing. We should incorporate the Daqing spirit of perseverance, the Lei Feng spirit of service to the people and so on in our volunteer activities, and we should also learn to innovate, and only through continuous reform and innovation can we keep progressing. To support the development of volunteer activities is to help the development of Chinese-style modernization. President Xi Jinping said that we should strengthen the construction of ideology and morality, the people have faith, the country has strength, and the nation has hope.

5. Conclusion

With the progress and development of the times, while science and technology are advancing rapidly, we should be more ideological and political education. In the history of the Chinese nation of more than five thousand years, selfless dedication and helpfulness have always been in a very important position. In the university, we should not forget the cultivation of our own cultivation while taking care of our studies. The learning process in the university is important for the formation of students' outlook on life, values and worldview, and participation in volunteer activities helps us to find out the role of individuals in society. University volunteer activities as a new educational platform, with a combination of practice and book knowledge to students to develop ideological and political education, so that students in practice by the ideological education, tapping into their own social values, youth have the power, the country has the development of the popularization of ideological education can inspire students to participate in the enthusiasm of the activities, and to participate in the activities can reach the ideological and political education, the two complement each other. Volunteer practice activities for college students to shape a good personality, improve their own quality, improve the moral ability to provide a new path, the state, society and major universities need to pay attention to support an important project.

Acknowledgements

2022 Anhui University of Finance and Economics Education Development Research Project (ACJFC22022); 2023 Undergraduate Research and Innovation Fund Project (XSKY23055ZD); 2022 National College Student Innovation and Entrepreneurship Training Program Project (202210378295).

References

- [1] HU Kai. Ideological and Political Education Function of College Students' Volunteer Service[J]. Ideological and Political Education Research,2010(02).
- [2] Wang Weizheng. Reflections on the construction of long-term mechanism of college students' volunteer service activities[J]. Thought Theory Education Guide,2011(2).
- [3] Hai Songmei. Sound Personality Shaping of Contemporary Youth under the Perspective of Socialist Core Values[J]. Research on Ideological Education,2015(8).
- [4] Lu Shizhen,Li Zexuan on the New Pattern of Volunteer Service with Chinese Characteristics in the New Era[J]. China Youth Social Science,2019(5).
- [5] Zhang Bing,Zhu Xiaolei. Influencing factors of college students' persistent volunteering behavior[J]. Contemporary Youth Research,2018(05).
- [6] YAN Huimin, XU Yifeng, CHEN Hongjia. Characteristics of College Students' Volunteer Service Since Reform and Opening Up and the Development Trend in the New Era[J]. Thought Theory Education,2018(04).
- [7] SUN Jian, WANG Yuefen. The actual logic of volunteering in college students' social responsibility identity[J]. Theory Guide,2017(09).
- [8] Ma Yibing,Chen Xianbing. Ruminations on College Student Volunteerism with Chinese Characteristics [J]. Journal of Northeast Normal University (Philosophy and Social Science Edition), 2017(03).
- [9] Song Jinsong. On the carrier of voluntary service activities of ideological and political education in colleges and universities--Taking Hunan University of Science and Technology as an example[J]. Thought theory education guide,2017(04).