

Study on the Path of Enhancing the Ideological and Political Education Function of Volunteer Service Practical Activities of College Students in Local Universities

-- Taking Anhui University of Finance and Economics as an Example

Wanying Zhang

School of art, Anhui University of Finance and Economics, Bengbu, Anhui, 233330, China.

Abstract

Volunteerism refers to the participation in activities that utilize one's passion for volunteerism under the premise that it is not appropriate to make gains in order to serve the public and promote social progress. By participating in service activities, volunteers can promote the healthy development of society, and at the same time, their own ability and value will be enhanced accordingly. At the same time, volunteering activities contain rich elements of ideological and political education.

Keywords

Volunteer service, college students, ideological and political education.

1. The significance of ideological and political education of college students' volunteer service

In the new era, the forms of ideological and political education and education are constantly changing and developing, and the ideological education environment is ushering in a new chapter. Volunteer service activities are also increasingly emphasized. In recent years, major colleges and universities have gradually joined in volunteer activities, and the number of students participating in volunteer service has increased year by year. Cultivating the spirit of volunteerism among college students is an important part of the university's efforts to cultivate quality talents in the new era. For students, participation in volunteer service can not only promote the development of society can also improve their own ability, for the school, volunteer service allows students to apply the knowledge learned in books in practice, using a new way of ideological and political education for students, the country, college students volunteering so that students can devote themselves to serving the people, learning the spirit of Lei Feng.

1.1. Optimizing the form of ideological and political education

University is an important position for the country to cultivate talents, and the ideological and political level of students is related to the future of the country. While universities usually indoctrinate students with theories in the classroom, students reduce their independent thinking ability in the process of accepting knowledge. Therefore, we need a way to make students accept the ideological and political education from the inside out. Volunteer service activities of college students is a new form of ideological and political education, and some colleges and universities have adopted the methods of "on-campus volunteer service", "community service" and "three trips to the countryside" to carry out activities. In this process, not only can they serve the grassroots, but also realize the self-worth of college students and mobilize the enthusiasm of students to serve the general public. Letting students receive ideological and political education through practice is a change from the previous way of learning from textbooks, and is a way of education in which theory is combined with practice and society is benchmarked against the school.

1.2. Promoting the enhancement of the ideological and political education function of college students' volunteer activities

Volunteer activities are carried out in universities to promote the improvement of students' ideological and moral level in practice. In volunteering activities, students can participate in a wider range of activities, from the campus to society, in-depth understanding of all aspects of society, the theory of learning in books applied to practice, through practical reflection to better understand the ideological and educational function of volunteerism.

1.3. Enhancing the sense of social responsibility among university students

College students are a new force in society, representing vigor and youthfulness, and most contemporary college students are independent and autonomous, taking the helm of their own lives. However, while they advocate freedom, they can not help but have a selfish and self-interested mentality, resulting in "everyone for me" one-sided idea. The lack of a sense of social responsibility and even the corruption of personal morality among some college students are not conducive to their healthy growth.

College students to participate in volunteer activities, to help the socially disadvantaged, to provide assistance to others, in the other people's gratitude and social recognition will enhance the individual's sense of personal honor and sense of achievement to help others, through the social volunteering activities help to cultivate students' social responsibility, to promote good morals. Therefore, encouraging students to participate in volunteer activities in universities is conducive to the development of students' sense of social responsibility.

2. Impact of college students' volunteerism on ideological and political education in universities

2.1. Bringing theory and practice closer together

Ideological and political students in colleges and universities need to use practice to prove and develop, through their own participation in volunteer services can be more practical experience of helping people to achieve a sense of accomplishment and the realization of self-worth, to the ideological and political learning of science and ideology combined with the teaching of students, in the university classroom not only to teach students advanced scientific basic knowledge and basic skills, but also combined with the knowledge and skills contained in the ideological and moral, so that students receive political, ideological and moral quality education, so that students are more willing to receive, so that learning can be put to use. Students receive political, ideological and moral quality education, so that students are more willing to receive, so that learning can be put into practice.

2.2. Optimizing the path of ideological and political education for college students

When students participate in volunteer activities, we should pay attention to guiding students' motives for participating in activities, correcting their wrong motives, integrating ideological and moral education into daily life, and making the slogans of "Helping others to be happy" and "Everyone strives to be a volunteer star" heard in campus life and club activities. The slogan of "Help others to be happy" and "Everyone strives to be a volunteer star" is emphasized in campus life and club activities. Volunteer services are integrated with our own needs, so that we can have a dual understanding of what is good for others and what is good for ourselves. Volunteer activities benefit a wide range, not only for the service recipients and society as a whole, but also for the volunteers have an educational function, the participants in the subtle acceptance of the "willingness to help others" culture, more conducive to the ideological and moral education function of volunteer activities.

2.3. Mutual promotion of volunteer activities and ideological and political education

Volunteer activities and ideological and political education are both essentially important ways to promote social progress and human development. With the change and development of the new era, ideological and political education in colleges and universities also need new development carriers. While participating in volunteer service, college students can help others and improve their comprehensive quality development and ideological and moral quality. Carrying out volunteer activities is conducive to the cultivation of high-quality talents in colleges and universities, and can promote the healthy development of society.

3. Analysis of the current situation of university students' voluntary service activities

College students are an important part of the volunteer service team, which has received more and more attention in recent years. When volunteering activities are widely carried out in universities and colleges, some problems are gradually unfolding. At present, the first thing we need to consider is how to apply the knowledge in the books to the practical activities of volunteering, university volunteering is an ideological and political education activities to serve the public and enhance self-competence, but the students in the major colleges and universities to participate in the activities there are still participating in the enthusiasm is not high and the motivation of the impure and so on, which represents the ideological and political education has not been put into practice, and has not been educated the spirit of volunteering deep into the minds of the students. Go.

3.1. Some students have impure motives for participating in volunteer activities

In the eyes of students in major universities, everyone has a different understanding of "volunteering" and "learning from Lei Feng". Some people feel that it is meaningful to help others selflessly, while others take it as a means to gain honor and benefits or even regard volunteer service as free labor in society. This is the general public's one-sided view of volunteering, we need to break the public's narrow view of volunteering, pay attention to the correct guidance for volunteering, and give full play to the concept of volunteering activities to educate people. Volunteerism as an altruistic activity, the central concept is to learn from Lei Feng, dedication to others, to improve themselves. Mrs. Curie said, I think you have to look for spiritual power from a kind of rationalism. Therefore, our understanding of volunteerism can not only stay in the basic level of helping people, but also to transform into a more spiritual value of the nurturing level, which should strengthen the ideological and political education of college students on volunteerism, volunteering and ideological education through the integration of college students on volunteerism for the understanding of the spiritual value of volunteerism activities, with a more noble concept of volunteering in the activities.

3.2. Single channel for students to participate in activities and loose management of volunteer services

The general channels for college students to participate in volunteer activities are from schools and club activities, and the channels for participation in volunteer service are relatively single. Most of the club activities are carried out in accordance with the needs of the club, and the ideological education of students is mostly handled by the education department. Such a management mechanism hinders the ideological and political education function of voluntary activities initiated by clubs. Most of the ideological and political education for students in schools is based on the teaching of theoretical knowledge, and the module of combining book knowledge through practice is relatively lacking. And colleges and universities for volunteering publicity is relatively single, seldom from the spiritual value of the level of volunteering activities to publicize and guide. As a result, many students are required by the school to participate in activities for the sake of participation, lost their self-reflection and reflection, thus creating a "forced to participate in" negative ideological emotions, which further hindered the development of volunteer activities.

3.3. Low willpower of students to stick to volunteer activities

When participating in volunteer activities, many students do so with the mentality of trying it out or earning credits. When they encounter problems or feel hard work, they are reluctant to continue to participate. Some students have too high expectations of volunteering before they participate in the activities, hoping that they can play their own value in it. However, when they really participate in the activities, they feel that it is just a small thing and reduce their motivation to participate in the activities. Some students participate in volunteer activities just to earn practice credits. All these situations have caused some difficulties for the development of volunteer activities.

3.4. Volunteerism protection system to be improved, lack of incentive system

Volunteering activities are hot in society, and the scale of volunteering activities is booming. However, the national publicity for volunteering is not very strong, resulting in many people's incomplete understanding of participation in volunteering. In colleges and universities, many schools do not have high support for the development of volunteer activities, and do not provide sufficient resource support and institutional safeguards for the development of activities, which leads to the development of school volunteerism to stay on the surface, and fails to give full play to the educative function of volunteerism.

In carrying out activities, the recruitment requirements for volunteers to participate in activities are low, and the ideological training of volunteers is too simple and shallow, resulting in uneven efficiency of volunteers in carrying out activities and hindering the implementation of activities.

School volunteer activities lack of protection of the rights and interests of volunteers involved in activities and activities to stimulate the link. Because of the public welfare mechanism of voluntary activities, so the organizers of its security system is relatively weak, material support is small, for college students to participate in the activities of the incentive is small, is not conducive to the activities to the development.

4. Fourth, the ideological and political education function of college students' volunteering practice activities to improve the path

4.1. Focusing on the spirit of volunteerism among college students

Cultivation of college students' volunteering spirit is an important part of college education. National quality is the concentrated manifestation of the comprehensive national strength, and it is the root of social development, in order to realize the revitalization of the country and the development of the nation, it is necessary to improve the political and personal quality of the people. College students as the emerging hope of national development, volunteers for the recognition of the spirit of volunteerism is the internal motivation of volunteerism. Therefore, it is necessary to strengthen the education and guidance of college students on volunteer service, strengthen the publicity of the spirit of volunteer service in daily teaching, and organize the election of "Volunteer Star" to set up a role model for college students' volunteer service, and drive the volunteer service activities with the leadership of exemplary volunteers. Volunteer service activities on campus to carry out the exchange of experience, so that students can exchange and share the experience of volunteer service, through the meeting to learn the spirit of volunteer service, reflecting on the participation in the activities of self-experience.

4.2. Improve the system related to volunteer activities in colleges and universities

4.2.1. Increased recruitment criteria

Without rules, nothing can be accomplished. Any activities and organizations without the protection of rules and regulations can not go a long way, look at today, although the volunteer service is booming, but for the youth volunteer service activities related to the system is not very perfect, colleges and universities for the recruitment of volunteers usually do not have a strict target, clear job requirements and recruitment targets, which also leads to a mixed bag of volunteers, did not take into account the volunteers in the post whether it is suitable for their own This also leads to a mixed bag of volunteers, without considering whether the volunteers are suitable for their own positions. When recruiting volunteers, they should consider their own strengths, such as strong publicity ability or organizational ability, so that they can find positions that are suitable for their professions.

4.2.2. Organize volunteer training

When students participate in volunteer service activities, they want to learn practical skills and realize their personal value from the activities, in order for college students to quickly adapt to the work of volunteering, can be set up through the volunteering training to quickly understand the needs of the volunteering object and service-related knowledge. In the training process for different majors or different service volunteers in the volunteer service training, fully mobilize the enthusiasm of students and explore personal potential, improve the quality of volunteer service. Through the training of college student volunteers, compared with the previous randomly recruited volunteers, the internal management of the organization is more rigorous, the ability to cope with emergencies is better, and the connection between the members of the organization is closer, and the training of volunteers can improve the comprehensive quality of the volunteers and enhance the volunteers' self-confidence in practice.

4.2.3. Establishment of a security system for college volunteers

The establishment of college volunteer service organizations, specifically responsible for volunteer service activities in schools, to ensure that their volunteer activities have a strong focus, to respond to the national call for the importance of youth volunteer service, to protect the development of volunteer service activities and the rights and interests of volunteers. Improve the legal mechanism for safeguarding the rights and interests of volunteers to protect the enthusiasm and passion of college students for volunteer service, so that they can participate in activities and live and study happily under the protection of the legal system. The establishment of volunteer service reward mechanism, according to the scientific reward evaluation system, appropriate incentives for their recognition, is conducive to stimulate the enthusiasm of students to participate in volunteer activities, to set an example for other students, the formation of benign competition among students, can reduce the phenomenon of volunteers in the post to touch the fish.

4.3. Establishment of a fund for university volunteer activities

In the public's impression, volunteerism is mostly public welfare, not for profit, we usually link it with free, but stable financial support is the basic material guarantee for the stable development of volunteerism, but the support of volunteer activities should be the joint responsibility of the school and the community, and need to have a certain amount of volunteer reserve fund of the college league committee, rather than the use of other activities remaining funds to carry out volunteer activities as a Fund. In addition, the government should also allocate a portion of its financial income as a fund for local voluntary service activities, and strictly supervise the flow of funds, so as not to allow the funds to flow to unknown places. Under the guidance of the government, enterprises should actively provide funds and sponsorships for volunteer service organizations, and give back to the society by providing assistance and subsidies to volunteer service organizations, and the government should also implement preferential policies such as less tax for enterprises sponsoring volunteer services, and the enterprises can also provide support positions for college student volunteers, so that they can not only exercise the practical ability of the students, but also recruit talents for the enterprises, which can be said as Two birds with one stone.

4.4. Enriching the forms of volunteer activities in colleges and universities

Nowadays, volunteering activities are no longer limited to old people's homes, Red Cross charitable activities, and other activities.

With our country's outstanding achievements in the war against poverty, in order to ensure that the countryside is free from poverty, the state organizes and mobilizes teachers and students from colleges and universities across the country to root in the countryside, integrating themselves into the big me, and carrying out the "three to the countryside activities". Organize students to participate in the "three to the countryside activities", the university's cultural knowledge through the books and magazines transport and college students to the countryside to communicate with villagers, making wall paintings and other ways to complete the dissemination of knowledge and cultural exchanges, Anhui University of Finance and Economics, for example, the school often organizes students to carry out a variety of volunteer activities, such as organizing the College of Art for five consecutive years. "Art Run Youth" culture and art group members in-depth rural areas for cultural wall painting, art teaching and other precision poverty alleviation and rural revitalization of volunteer service activities, involving a number of villages, including Lingbi County, Suzhou City, Anhui Province, Yinji Town, Wei Tong Village, Huaiyuan County, Wanfu Town, Brick Village, Bengbu City, Yuhui District, Ma Town, former Ying Village, the total area of wall painting reached more than 6,000 square meters, radiating the number of people Reached more than 6,000 square meters, the number of radiation has accumulated more than 20,000 people, participating students nearly 400 times; organization of students in the Meibiao Central Primary School, Xuehai Road Primary School, Daqing Road Primary School, love teaching volunteer activities; organization of the beautification of the campus environment - manhole cover drawing volunteer activities; learning Lei Feng volunteer service activities; winter and summer "three to the countryside The university has organized various kinds of volunteer service activities in the summer and winter seasons, such as "three trips to the countryside". College students go deep into the countryside, not only can drive the development of rural culture, improve the overall cultural and spiritual needs of the countryside, students of related majors can also give play to their own professional knowledge to the villagers of the technology popularization, such as electronic information students can teach the village children knowledge of electronic information, agronomy students can communicate with the villagers of the knowledge of crop cultivation, poultry breeding techniques, etc., Arts and Culture can be organized in the arts and culture, etc. interest training classes, the development of rural areas, the development of the countryside. Arts and crafts majors can organize art and culture interest training classes to develop the interests of rural women and children, etc., so that students in the process of activities can not only help to help others to enhance the personal value of the sense of honor, but also exercise their own strength, and reap the benefits of growth in practice.

5. Conclusion

With the continuous development of education, colleges and universities should promote the development of students' personality while improving their sense of social responsibility, innovative spirit and practical ability to serve the country and the people. College student volunteer service as a new mode of parenting form, so that students through practical learning to enhance students' personal ability and comprehensive quality, to explore the personal value of students, is conducive to the ideological and political education function. Through volunteer activities to help students form a correct outlook on life, worldview and values, to play the ideological and political education function of volunteerism, to meet the demand for innovative services, but also need to combine the national society with the actual situation, to promote the development of college student volunteerism in many ways, to carry forward the spirit of volunteerism, and to provide more support for the development of college student volunteerism.

Acknowledgements

2022 National College Student Innovation and Entrepreneurship Training Program Project (202210378295); 2023 Undergraduate Research and Innovation Fund Project (XSKY23055ZD).

References

- [1] Liu, W.T,(2015). Research on the Value of Ideological and Political Education in Volunteer Service for College Students [D]. Northeast Normal University.
- [2] Li, Y.,(2013). Research on Volunteer Service for College Students from the Perspective of Ideological and Political Education [D]. Northeast Forestry University,2013
- [3] Han, X.P.,(2012), On the Ideological and Political Education Function of Volunteer Service for College Students [D]. Hebei Agricultural University.
- [4] Hu Lingxin. Research on Volunteer Service and Ideological and Political Education for College Students [D]. Chongqing University of Technology: 2012.
- [5] Ding Zhen. Volunteer Service for College Students and Its Function in Ideological and Political Education [D]. Henan University: 2012.